

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A recording device which handles recording reservations includes input device configured to input a video signal, recording device configured to record the video signal, reservation receiving device configured to receive input of recording reservation information, first recording control device configured to make a target video signal be recorded on the basis of the recording reservation and second recording control device configured to stop recording by the first recording control device when a target video signal, which the recording reservation information requests, cannot be obtained.